The Modern Middle East

The Middle East is frequently described as a “problem region” by journalists and policymakers, where passion prevails over reason, where primordial loyalties are privileged over socio-economic or political coalitions. This course aims to step beyond such generalizations, by way of an overview of the region's modern history. This overview will provide a context with which students can approach further work in modern Middle Eastern studies. Perhaps more importantly, the course will, in its own right, enable students to adopt an informed, critical perspective on the region's current conflicts and challenges. Specifically, the course covers Egypt, Turkey, Iran, the Fertile Crescent, and the Arabian Peninsula. After surveying the Ottoman world in the nineteenth century, students will examine the emergence of the principal nation-states of the Middle East in the wake of the First World War. Although political currents are considered in depth, much discussion is devoted to associated social, intellectual, cultural, and economic developments, including the trajectory of the 2011 Arab uprisings.

Teaching assistants: Mr. Scott Bursey (e-mail richard_bursey@sfu.ca) and Mr. Aleksandar Jovanovic (e-mail ajovanov@sfu.ca).

Evaluation:

1500-word essay, based on materials distributed to all students (November 1, 2016) 20%
In-class mid-term examination (October 4, 2016) 30%
Final examination (December 17, 2016) 40%
Tutorial participation 10%

Texts (available through bookstore):

- William Cleveland and Martin Bunton, A History of the Modern Middle East, sixth edition (Westview Press, 2016).
- Marvin Gettleman and Stuart Schaar (editors), The Middle East and Islamic World Reader: An Historical Reader for the 21st Century, third edition (Grove Press, 2012).

Laptop computers, tablets, and smartphones are not permitted in the lecture hall or tutorial room. This is due to the distractions these devices offer to concentration on in-class lectures and discussions. For information on the nature of these distractions and their impact, please refer to:

<http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/answer-sheet/wp/2014/09/25/why-a-leading-professor-of-new-media-just-banned-technology-use-in-class/>

Students must take notes on paper unless they have documented permission from the Centre for Students with Disabilities to use a tablet or laptop.

Food is not permitted in the lecture hall or tutorial room. Please leave eating for before or after class time.

The mid-term and final examinations will each consist of a series of identification and essay questions. Identification questions are intended to test students' knowledge of specific personalities, places, and events of historical significance, while essay questions reach beyond these specific details to test students' ability to make connections across history in line with particular themes. During both the mid-term and the final, students will have several questions in both the identification and essay sections from which to choose.

The 1500-word essay will analyze a primary source provided to all students in the course at the end of lecture on October 20, 2016. The essay is due at the beginning of lecture on November 1, 2016. Instructions for the essay will be provided to students together with the primary source at the time of distribution. Generally students are asked to compare and contrast primary sources, and/or to place primary sources in their historical context(s).

Class Discussions/Participation:

1. Repeated absences from lectures or tutorials will lead to a failing participation grade. You must consult the instructor should you have to miss classes for health or family reasons.
2. Three or more recorded absences from tutorial will lead to a participation grade of zero.
3. Discussions in tutorials are based heavily on the discussion question and primary source for the week, listed in the syllabus below. Regardless of whether the professor has dealt with the topic of the discussion question in lecture, students are expected to come to their weekly tutorial having completed all readings relevant to the discussion question for the week.
4. Completion of the readings before class and a consistent effort to contribute to class discussions will be rewarded with high participation marks. Lateness and poor preparation for class will be penalized.

News: At the beginning of the term, students must select one Middle Eastern news source and one non-Middle Eastern news source to consult on a regular basis online during the term. There is a wide range of Middle Eastern news sources available in English editions on the web, and students may choose whatever source they wish, as long as the source is headquartered in a Middle Eastern country. As for the non-Middle Eastern source, again the choice is up to the student, as long as the source has a reporter or bureau based in the Middle East.

Lecture Recordings: The instructor has agreed to have his lectures recorded and made available to students enrolled in the course through <http://www.sfu.ca/lectures>. Students are strongly advised not to view listening to these recordings as a substitute for attending lectures. Attendance at lectures is a course requirement. Failure to attend lectures will be noted and will result in a reduction of the participation grade.

Cheating and Plagiarism: I will not tolerate cheating or plagiarism. If you are having trouble with a concept or assignment, meet with the instructor well before the relevant deadlines. Poor, but legitimate, performance in a given assignment is far preferable to jeopardizing your academic career through fraud.

Week I

Tuesday, September 6, 2016: Introduction

Thursday, September 8, 2016: Islam and the Ottoman World

- Cleveland and Bunton, 35-48.
- Gettleman and Schaar:
